Communication Skills Series for Health Care Practitioners

1. Fellow, Resident and Faculty Communication Series – This program began in 1977 and has continued monthly at the University of North Carolina Medical Center. It is directed by Dr. Drossman and consists of informal skill-based training in interview techniques, clinical reasoning and methods to enhance the patient provider relationship. Sessions consist of live interviews with patients, role plays, small group learning and general discussion around a case presentation format.
2. "What Do You Hear? Improving Patient Care in IBD Through Communication" This is a facilitated learning program created by DrossmanCare in Association with Abbvie Pharmaceuticals. The program is designed to teach communication skills to health care practitioners working in Inflammatory Bowel Disease but it can be used by all medical practitioners. The program consists of a slide presentation, a Workshop Moderator Guide, that contains guidelines for teaching the workshop, and a Participant Workbook. Imbedded in the slide presentation are 3 several minute video vignettes written and produced by DrossmanCare that address ineffective and effective communication skills. In February 2017 Dr. Drossman facilitated a "teach the teacher" workshop for clinicians and behaviorists (psychiatrists and psychologists) on how to moderate a workshop. Abbvie then plans to produce a series of workshops at a national level over the next year with each meeting having a behavioral and GI facilitator using this program. Presentations Given:
 - a. Facilitated Training for psychologists and gastroenterologists to launch national program. April 6-7, 2017 Chicago, IL.
 - b. For community physicians. June 8, 2017, Knapolis, NC.
 - c. Capital Grill, ACG meeting. October 15, 2017, Orlando, FL.
 - d. Margaux's Restaurant, for community GI physicians and PAs. November 2, 2017, Raleigh NC.
 - e. Bob's Steak House for community GI physicians, March 22, 2018. March 22, 2018, Dallas Texas.
3. "Rome Foundation Communication: Train the Trainers" This all day program identified key opinion leaders in the area of functional GI and motility disorders to be trained in facilitating clinicians on communication skills. This is part of the DrossmanCare-Rome Foundation's "What Do You Hear" program and is a means to expand educational programs for clinicians. Dr. Drossman taught the attendees facilitation methods
